THE ARION FAMILY.

ARION.

Copeland Philip Jacob Arion was born in Shelby County, Kentucky, near Louisville, July 25th, 1795. His father Charles Francis Louis Arion was born in Germany and graduated from Yena, Prussia, and was considered at the time of arriving in America, the best educated man in the land. His mother Susannah Pierce, was born at Port Royal, Virginia and an heiress of considerable wealth. When a boy he was fearless, resolute and conscientious in a high degree. His keen sense of justice was sorely tried many times in his youth at the awful scenes he witnessed on the adjoining plantations, and his horror of slavery began when a mere child.

When seventeen years old, he was selected to go on horseback to Philadelphia from Louisville, Ky. and entrusted with a large sum of money to be delivered to a bank in the then, far off metropolis. The anxious ride and haddardous trip was accomplished, and the saddle bags surrendered to the bank, and the youngman with high hopes and a full pocket book, started on his return trip. Upon reaching home in Louisville, the mournful news reached him of the death of his father. His mother was taken into his confidence and acquiesced in all his plans which were, to have all their slaves taught a trade & immediately he sent them to learn the brick layer and stone mason's Trade. He afterwards sold the plantation, and with his mother, two sisters, a brother and the black people, started to make his home i in Madison, Indiana. In doing this, he had to give his personal bond that the negroes would not become paupers upon the state. One of the black boys he freed from slavery was Peter, who was a trusted and valuable servant in Col. Arion's family, and drew his pay regularly until the family left Madison for Illinois, then Mr. Alex. Lanier induced him to come to him, where his faithfulness made him a treasure in the Lanier family until his death. Two other boys went to Illinois when the Colonel built his home on the Decatur farm, and after their brick work was done, returned to Madison, proud to having helped their friends of olden times. He lived to see these same people honest, thrifty, industrious citizens and loyal friends to their former master.

He had the trees cut down on his Madison property to build his home. His first wife was Miss Lucretia Givens of Kentucky, who followed six children to an early grave.

He published the first newspaper in Indiana, called the "Indiana Republican" in 1817. When near his majority he was elected to the Legislature and took his seat just after he became of age. He was made Colonel of the Militia in 1819; he was postmaster for years, county treasurer of twelve years. He married in 1839 Mrs. Helen M. Beeson, daughter of Judge John Test. He aided and worked for public improvements in state, city and county with unerring good will. Col. Arion was eager for good roads, constantly urging improvements and finally succeeded in having a plank road built from the top of the hill several miles out. In those days, this was a great event. He was the means of getting the Madison and Ind. R.R. franchise after a bitter fight in the legislature and senate. In 1845 he published the Madison Banner; and finally, after more than forty years of residence in Madison, moved to Illinois and took up farming near Decatur, Illinois. Then he moved to Chicago, Ill. where he was an honored and respected citizen.

He, with a number of citizens, organized what they called "The Lincoln and Cameron Club" and were the first to place before our country, Abraham Lincoln's name as a candidate for the presidential chair. After this, he was made chairman of the Cook County Republican Club, and occupied that position at the time of the great Republican convention in the "Wigwam" at Chicago, when Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president in 1861. In recognition of his services in the campaign, and as a respected citizen, the people of Chicago, signed a petition, the longest ever sent to a President then, asking his appointment as postmaster of Chicago. This, Mr. Lincoln told him with deep regret, had been promised before his election, to Mr. John L. Scripps, one of the editors of the Chicago Tribune, in recognition of the work he had done for Mr. Lincoln in writing his life. Col. Arion was offered after this, and occupied the place as head of the dead letter department, which he filled for over twelve years.

After long years of active work in the up-building of Chicago, which was in its infancy, he moved with his family to Brooklyn, and after a brief period, April 26th, 1886, passed peacefully to the Great Beyond at the ripe age of ninety-two years. The last rites were performed by the Brother Masons, as Col. Arion had been a Mason for seventy one years and was the oldest at that time in the United States.

Besides the widow, Mrs. Helen M. Arion, were left two daughters, Mrs. Lydia Arion Warrack and Mrs. Helen Arion Lewis, and grand children, Philip Arion Warrack, Mrs. Lew Wallace, Jr. Mrs. Francis B. Choate, and James Warrack, Jr. and S. Arion Lewis.

The 1819-20 files of the "Indiana Republican" with the caption on the front page, "Where Liberty dwells, there is my country" is in the possession of his grand-son, S. Arion Lewis of Omaha, Nebraska, as well as the old papers of 1845.

About 1949, the Madison Courier published article called "Madison in 1819" which were copied from these old papers. One of these articles tells of the Arion family. They are filed in the Indpls State Library.

This article was copied from a typed paper in possession of the Historical Society. Jefferson Co.

Early families in county were Henry Bottorf, James Garner, David Lentz, Mathias Hester, near Charlestown. The customs of these people were simplicity of dress and address, their lack of wealth prevented the introduction of superfluity, and their dependence upon each other seemed to endear them in their several associations.

James Garner gave 6 acres to Charlestown in 1808. The first man engaged in buying and selling produce, articles found in country stores was Anderson Ross; after him came Wesley Bottorf. Mr. Garner(my grandfather), J.W.Haymaker, Dr. Benson, and Mr. Alexander Ruddel. The Rev. Moses Ashworth built the Bethel meeting house in 1807 and the Rev. James Garner preached the 1st. Christmas sermon in this part of Indiana. Was pastor Wall St. 1813-1827 The 5th minister New Washington circuit; Utica before 1820; Silver Creek, 1808.

Emily Jane Garner was born Feb. 13th, 1831.

John Thomas Garner was born Aug. 25, 1832.

In a letter from a cousin Minnie Rogers, from Charlestown, Oct. 4, 1914, she says;

"Your grandfather, James Garner, who died from cholera in 1832, is buried in the Robinson settlement graveyard, which surrounds the old Bethel church. Grandmother, her husband, John Garner, James Garner, your mother and my great grandfather are buried here and several of my father's sisters."

James Garner moved from Jessamine Co. Ky. in 1802 with brothers. Came from North Carolina.

Mr. Joe Schofield dead. 1886.

Sudden decease of Honored Citizen.

Mr. Joe Schofield died very suddenly at his residence on Jefferson Street this morning at 11:30 o'clock of heart disease. He had been complaining during the morning of a pain in his side, but nothing of a serious nature was thought of. At 11 o'clock he walked from the mill to his residence and laid down upon a lounge, & while his wife was putting a pillow under his head he expired.

Mr. Schofield was born at Honley near Huddersfield in Yorkshire, England, July 4th, 1817 & was therefore in his 69th year. He was married to Miss Caroline Haigh in Almondbury Church, Huddersfield, December 26, 1841, & left England for America April, 1842, arriving in New York in the month of May. He settled on a farm with his father at Dillsborough, Indiana. Shortly afterwards he moved to Rising Sun, Indiana & took charge of the weaving department of the Rising Sun Cotton Mills, then operated by the late Pinckney James, & remained there until the mills burned. He then purchased an interest in the woolen mills at Indianapolis, Indiana operated by Yount & Adkinson. He did not remain here very long owing to sickness in his family; sold out his interest & purchased the woolen mills at Rising Sun, Indiana & operated there until the fall of 1860 when he sold the mills to Haigh & Hutchinson, & retired to his farm above the city.

In 1862 he built a new mill at Rising Sun & operated there until 1864 when he sold to Haigh & Co. He then came to Madison & started the Madison Woolen Mills in 1865 in the building now known as the Globe Tobacco Warehouse on the river front. In 1867 he sold a half interest to Simeon Haigh & they operated the mills under the firm name of Schofield & Haigh until the spring of 1870 when he sold his interest to S.E. Haigh.

He then purchased Mr. Fergus Cochran's interest in the woolen mills at Vevay, Indiana & formed a partnership with his son, John T. Schofield, & in the spring of 1877 they built the present mill edifice on Jefferson Street & removed the machinery from Vevay, & there they have been ever since. Mr. Schofield leaves a wife, & three children, his son, John, Mrs. Frank Craig & Mrs. David Johnson.

Mr. Schofield was a very industrious & energetic man, having personal supervision of the woolen mills up to the hour of his death. He was kind-hearted & indulgent to his family & those about him. Through his patience & energy he has built up a handsome competency & leaves his family comfortably provided for. Madison loses in Mr. Schofield one of her best citizens and oldest manufacturers. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Christ Church. Interment in Springdale Cemetery.

Will of Robert Rea; bk. 1-7;

Wife, Nancy. dau Margaret, Nancy, & Martha.

mentions bounty land as soldier. Nov. 13, 1850.

will book 1-7. Jefferson Co. Indiana

I Robert Rea of the County of Jefferson and State of Indiana, and making void all former will by me at any time heretofore made. First I direct that my body be decently interred and that my funeral be conducted in a manner corresponding with my estate & situation in life and as to such worldly estate as it has pleased God to entrust me with, I dispose of the same in the following manner to wit; I direct first that all my just debts and funeral expense be paid as soon after my decease as possible out of the first money that may be collected from any portion of my estate real or personal.

Second I give & devise to my beloved wife, Nancy Rea, a comfortable & sufficient support & maintenance out of any portion of my property either real or personal or both as she may choose during her natural life. I also give & bequeath to the said Nancy Rea all my household furniture during her natural life, at her decease give & bequeath the same to my three daughters, Margaret, Nancy, Martha, to be appraised by three disinterested persons and equally divided among said daughters taking into consideration the sums of money or amount of property each has already received and deducting any excess from her share so as to equalize the whole.

Third I give and bequeath and devise all my lands tenements and hereditaments, goods, chattels, rights, credits, moneys and effects and all other of my property situate lying and being in Madison Township and the County aforesaid to my son, John M. Rea his heirs and assigns subject to the previous provisions of this will.

Fourth, if I shall be entitled to any bounty land under any law of the United States for services as a soldier, I direct that the same shall be equally divided among my children in fee simple and in case one of them should die then that person's share shall vest in his or her legal representations in fee simple, I also give and bequeath the articles mentioned in schedule "A" accompanying this will and dated January 25, 1842 in my own handwriting as therein stated.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 13th day of November A.D. 1850.

THE TWINING FAMILY.

TWINING.

From papers of Historical Society.

Rev. William Twining was the son of Stephen Twining, Treasurer of Yale College, and Almira Catlin. He was born in New Haven, Conn. Dec. 9, 1805; attended Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass. and Yale College, graduating at the latter institution in 1825. His theological training was received at the seminaries at Yale and Andover, 1826-1827.

In 1828 he began his ministerial work at Windsor, Vt. and on Jan. 6, 1830 was ordained an evangelist at Great Falls, New Hampshire. At this place a local custom, it seems, conferred upon the most recently married man the honorary title of "Hog Reeve",--accordingly the marriage of William Twining to Margaret Eliza Johnson, in New York City, June 1, 1830, brought this somewhat doubtful distinction to him.

Mrs. Twining was the daughter of Horace Johnson and Catherine Thorn, a grand daughter of Jonathan Thorn and Catherine Livingston of New York.

In 1831 William Twining was called to the pastorate of the Appleton St. now Eliot Congregational Church, at Lowell, Mass. In 1833 he was obliged, on account of failure of his voice, to resign from the ministry, and in 1836, he moved to Indiana to undertake educational work. His first stopping place was at Rising Sun, but a little later he settled at Madison, where he conducted a school for girls from 1836 to 1843. He returned in 1843 to New England in the effort to raise money for Wabash College. From 1843 to 1854 he was Professor of Mathematics, Natural Philosophy and Astronomy in Wabash College. From 1859 to 1863 he acted as temporary pastor of the Congregational Church at Beardstown, Ill. removing in 1863 to St. Louis, Mo.

William Twining was a strong temperance advocate and abolitionist. Actively interested in the work of the "underground railroad"--frequently giving aid to the unfortunate negroes who passed through the state.

His death occurred at Webster Groves, Mo. a suburb of St. Louis, June 5, 1884; Mrs. Twining died there Oct. 15, 1873. He published in 1877 a book of public worship entitled "Antiphonal Psalter and Liturgies."

THE WATTS FAMILY.

Copied from a letter written by Mrs. Lois Mynne Drueke, 657 N. Pine St. Indianapolis 2, Ind.

I am a great grand daughter of Barnett Watts of Clark Co. Ky. My grandfather Jordan Watts, had a brother Oscar, whose wife was Isabelle. They had a son, Willie, who was born about 1866--I think Uncle Oscar lost his life when the "David White" exploded in the Southern Mississippi.

Grandfather was a soldier--drummer--in the Mexican Army. He married Sarah Elizabeth Sutton. My mother was Arzela Watts Patterson--she was born June 9, 1862; died Feb. 23, 1912. She had five brothers, Thomas Barnett Watts, b August 20, 1864; died Oct. 1931; he had lived in Louisville since 1901 and sleeps in Cave Hill cemetery there. He was in the Ky. Legislature several times, a speaker of the House (Frankfort) in the 1920's.

Austin Jeremiah Watts, born Feb. 27, 1866; died Nov. 1930; buried in Williams Creek Cemetery known as "The Hill" on 96th St. West of Spring Mill Rd, Indpls. My mother and her younger sister also rest there. Frank Leslie Watts born Nov. 2, 1868; died Sept. 15, 1961. He and Uncle Tom were Railroad men on Ky. division of Ill. since 1901. Conductors. He sleeps in Rest Haven, Louisville. I think

Mary Frances Watts Powell had a son named Frank Leslie Powell. Harry Sutton Watts born 1873 died in Alabama Aug. 13, 1878. Charles Brewer Watts born Nov. 21, 1875 died in El Paso, Texas in July 1934--he had been a Santa Fe man--but was Chief Engineer at U.S. Smelter plant at time he passed away.

Erena Pearl Watts born Mar. 22, 1878 in Decatur, Ala. died July 20, 1901 in Indpls.

Grandmother Watts died on her 18th wedding anniversary Aug. 13, 1878--same day as her five year old son--they are buried in Alabama. Grandfather Jordan Watts died in March, 1886 in Rock, Kansas, where he was homesteading. I think Grandmother was his 3d wife. The first wife was an Olive Thomas, I think, Delilah Day was the 2d. She and her infant died about 1853.

Great grandfather Barnett Watts first married Delilah Simpson. She died and he remarried. This wife had 4 daughters--three never married and I think the youngest one did and moved from Clark Co. to Barren Co. when she was about 16. I saw a picture of this family of father, mother and three daughters taken about 1868.

The father of Barnett, Howard and William was Julius Watts--his wife Mary Eve Watts. They were married in Orange Co. Va. Dec. 22, 1785. I was born on their 109th anniversary. Julius Watts lived to celebrate 63 years of marriage. He died in 1849.

I have located 4 granddaughters of John and Frances Sebree Watts. Two live in Rising Sun, Ind. the others in Union Star, Mo. granddaughters of John & Susan Sebree Watts Henry of Ripley Co. John Watts was Julius and Elizabeth Watts Vawter's brother. The Rising Sun ladies are daughters of Mary Agnes Henry Akers Otto and are half sisters. Susie Stire and Sadie Hart are daughters of Susan Atchison Henry Hart. She and two of her sisters married brothers named Hart. Went West about 1860.

Mildred Watts Ray was a widow in 1840. Isaac Watts was living alone I didn't locate Frances Seabee Watts--another son of John S. Watts lives in Monroe Co. in 1840. In 1850 she was at Col. J. Frances Smith's home in Versailles, Ind. She died (-5-1854 exactly 20 yrs. to the day after Uncle John died. They are buried in the Watts family cemetery on the old homestead near Loughery & Bear Creeks close to Cross Plains. In 1840 an old lady was living in Dr. Cornett's home. Could it have been her mother?

Capt. John Watts #1936 received 4666 2/3ds acres of land in Ky. militia grant on 10-31-1783 for 7 years and #5238 grant of 277 acres for the 6 months over he served--this was a posthumous action on 6-17-1807

Thomas Johnson of Maryland was brother of Wm. Johnson and son of Valentine. Went to Maryland in 1769. His son, Thomas, Jr. had 14 boys, seven of whom served in Revolution.

Thomas Johnson, Jr. was 1st Governor of Maryland. Joshua Johnson was the father of Louisa Catherine Johnson who married John Quincy Adams.

(Picture of Mrs. Adams.)

Robert Johnson emigrated to Kentucky, then a county of Virginia, during the stormy period of the Revolution. He took an active part in the settlement of Kentucky. He and his brother Cave Johnson, joined a family of Bryants and settled what was known as Bryant's Station, afterwards the scene of the well known defense of Bryant's Station, when a fierce battle raged between the settlers and natives (Indians who were British allies.) Robert's wife, was one of the heroines of this conflict when the Indians surrounded the settlers and cut them off from water supply, Jerima led the women to the well. She carried her infant son, Richard, in her arms--a lighted arrow set fire to the baby's clothing. Afterwards Richard Johnson was accorded the honor of breaking the power of the Indians by killing the Indian chief, Tecumseh.

Mr. John G. Crozier

Dear Sir;

I am engaged in compiling a history of "The Crozier Family" in Great Britain and America. I would like to have the ancestry of your family as far back as you can go, so that I can include it in my book.

We can trace the name as far back as 1345 in Great Britain, but it is necessary to have the ancestry of those who settled in this country in order to make it complete and I therefore ask you to assist me as far as you can. Will you kindly give me the dates of all births, marriages and deaths, also all military services of the members of your family if they performed any and any other items of interest. The book will be illustrated and will have a cut of the Crozier Coat of Arms.

Should you desire a copy when published kindly let me know, as it will be sold to subscribers only. I expect the price to be about $3.00.

Yours very truly,

W.A.Crozier.

Dear Granddaughter;

I willingly embrace this opportunity to inform thee, that I received thy letter in the 3th no. last; which gave me great satisfaction to hear from thee and thy well doing and like wise from thy Mother, as I had not heard from you since my son, David Williams was there. We are all assured that we are thy family thou wast seeking for, altho thou hast misnamed two of my children; the names thee called Elias & John are Abijah & Israel. My husband, (that is, David Williams, thy grandfather) departed this life in the 9th month in the year 1788. My son David Williams departed this life in the year 1794 in Kentucky. My son Thomas Williams, lived in Kentucky and has lived there several years and is married. My son, Benjamin was killed in battle in Carolina. My son, Abjah died in Philadelphia just before the battle of Brandywine.

My daughter Peggy & Ann both are living with me. My daughter Patty and her husband are both dead and have left no issue. My son Israel is married and lives with me and farms the plantation, has but one child living, which they call Betsy. My husband died pretty sudden (being from home at Warm Springs) & left no will.

We had purchased a plantation about 150 acres leace land, for five live subjects to an annual rent of $7.00 per hundred acres per annum. I have the plantation in my hand until my decease, then it is likely there will be a division, and I expect there will be something coming to thee, as a child share. I have in my power to acknowledge thee as a grandchild, but as the letter come so unexpected, that I am not at present provided for such an acknowledgement, but am very glad to hear from thee and thy mother; and your wele doings. I should be glad if thee would write me again; and inform me how you are, and as the other letter came safe to hand and I expect if thee should write again they letters would meet with safe conveyance if they were directed to the care of Israel Jenny who lives in this county.

I conclude, at present with love to thee and husband and also thy mother, when thou shalt see her, and I remain thy affectionate grandmother.

ANN WILLIAMS.

OF
AND
JEFFERSON COUNTY, INDIANA.

CLARK COUNTY.

October Term, 1811.

The Viewers heretofore appointed to View the road leading from Work's Mill to Provine's Mill from thence to the boundary line of this county in a proper direction to the Town of Madison, made Report, to wit;

Beginning at said Work's Mill running a slaunt up the hill before the Mill door, thence through said Works Corn field near the cliff on the left hand to the former dwelling house of Henry Brenton, thence binding on the left of William Brenton's deadening passing through No. 159 by a cave in that number crossing Fourteen mile creek a small distance below the house occupied by John Morris in No. 172. Binding of the left of the farm attended by William Connell and thence a Blazed way crossing Rogers Run near the mouth and so on to Provine's Mill and thence nearly with the road from said Mill to Jacob Fouts out the left of Fourteen Mile Creek thence through said Fouts Oats and flax field and crossing said Creek near the Rapids of said Creek, thence up said Creek passing on the left of Jonathan Stark and Andrew Maiden's crossing said Creek at the mouth of Doe Run, and thence passing on the left of Jael Passwaters to Jacob Storms Lane.

Which report being read on two successive days of this Term and no person appearing to Object to the same-

It is ordered that the said Road be established as prayed for, and Robert Jackson be appointed supervisor of the lower end of that part of the road in Springhill Township and that all the hands north of Kibby's Mill, extending up as far as Polk Run do assist him in opening and keeping the same in Repair, and that William Stewart be appointed supervisor of that part of the road in Springville Twp. and that all the hands on the West side of said road within six miles do assist in opening and keeping the same in repair. And Jacob Fouts be appointed for the upper end of said road in Springhill twp. and that all the hands within four miles of any part of said road, do assist said supervisor in opening and keeping the same in repair said road to be opened of the wedth of forty feet.

Isaac Shelby, clk.

To the Honorable Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Jefferson County, the Petition of the subscribers respectfully sheweth-- That there is a considerable Intercourse between the White River Settlement and the State of Kentucky by the way of Mr. Samuel Cooper's Ferry. That if a road was opened from Mr. John Crothers Tanyard by way of Mr. William Ramsays mill to Coopers Ferry on the Ohio River, it would be the highest and best way for the White River people to go to the river and be not only useful to Travelers generally but of considerable advantage to the Neighborhood in going to Mill as well as an encouragement to the two establishments. That a considerable proportion of the road would fall in with the one now in operation from Madison towards Charlestown. We therefore pray your Honours to order a View of the intermediate ground from the points designated and if in the opinion of your Honours, a Road along the same shall be adjudged useful and necessary, that it may be established a Public Highway.

THE VILLAGE AT THE END

A Chapter in Early Indiana Railroad History

by

WYLIE J. DANIELS

Written for Indianapolis Historical Society

This story covers a period in the history of Indiana between the years of 1840 and 1850 that possibly saw more and greater changes than any similar period in the history of the state. In those years the state might be said to have reached maturity, hopes long deferred were realized, the state debt was adjusted, the Wabash and Erie Canal finished, the Public School system established, a new Constitution adopted, the first benevolent institutions built, the use of the telegraph begun and perhaps most important of all, the first Railroads were completed.

It was a time of commercial and agricultural prosperity and of bitter political controversy and the newspapers reflected the enthusiastic, hopeful, and patriotic spirit of those days. Indiana was fortunate in having many outstanding men as editors of its leading papers in the '40s and '50s.

The Indiana State Journal edited at Indianapolis about 1840 by John D. DeFrees, the Madison Courier at Madison edited by H.C. Garber, the Sentinel at Indianapolis with Messrs. Page and George Chapman as editors about 1841, The Banner at Madison, the Gazette at Columbus edited by W.L. Terrill about 1847 and The Democrat at Franklin. This article was prepared largely from the files of these papers.

In the early '40s Indiana was suffering from the Panic of 1837 and the collapse of an Internal Improvements scheme. At that time the total property valuation of the state was around $94,000,000, with the state debt of $12,000,000.00 on which no interest was being paid. Never-the-less the population was increasing.

At that time the State, especially the Central part was still depending on roads described as intolerable in summer and impassable in winter, for all movements of trade and commerce as well as mail and passengers by transportation in stages and wagons. Sometimes mails were days to weeks behind. The Ohio River was known as the Great Thoroughfare of the West and a great part of the trade and commerce of the State came to the river towns of Lawrenceburg, Madison, Jeffersonville and New Albany, of which Madison seems to be the most important, and from these points all goods and produce were transported North by wagon roads, such as the Michigan Road which was built during that time. The wagon trip from the river points to Indianapolis took from 9 to 12 days.

Owing to the very unsatisfactory condition of travel over the roads the need of some better means of transportation was very apparent and the Madison Railroad which was embraced in the general system of Internal Improvements adopted by the State in 1836 was begun by the State about 1837 and up to 1842 the State had spent over $1,600,000.00 on the construction. Up to that year the state had built 23 miles of the road and bid for building another 23 miles and also had bought the grounds for a depot at Madison and a work shop on the hill at North Madison and had the locomotive and cars in use at that time.

In 1842, however, the State Legislature abandoned its program of public work laying no plans to complete them and the Railroad ventures were turned over to private companies to complete.

The greatest obstacle in building the Madison Railroad was getting up the hill out of Madison and it was the large expenditure of money spent on the cut, much of which the Legislature thought was wasted that caused the State to abandon the project. The cut was completed in 1841, 7,000 feet long with a 5.9% grade and until 1848 trains were pulled up with horses, but in that year a cog track was built and a locomotive secured to pull the train up by means of cogs.

When the State turned the Railroad project over to private hands it was still in the midst of a depression and the new operators found difficulty in raising the necessary capital to go ahead with the building. A stock company was formed and the land owners along the right of way subscribed for $80,000.00 of the stock, but it was mostly in lands on which it was difficult to raise cash on account of the depression. Consequently the leading promoters had to advance private funds and use their personal credit to secure the money needed to proceed with the work.

An interesting side light on the cost of operations per day at that time was given as follows;

|---|--------|
| Pay of Superintendent, 2 clerks, 2 assistants | $7.74 |
| Machinist | 7.37 |
| Blacksmith | 2.66 |
| Carpenter | 2.77 |
| Conductor, Engineer, Fireman | |
| And two Hands on the train | 5.00 |
| Four Hands on train and one at Columbus | 3.88 |
| Wood, oil and oats and hay for horses | 5.00 |
| Wear and tear on engines and cars | 4.38 |

Or a total of about $38.80 per day.

The road was completed to Columbus by July 1844 up to that time there was still a great deal of opposition to the completion of the road to Indianapolis especially by land owners along the Ohio River, who thought that Madison was then on her way to greatness but would be removed to Indianapolis when the railroad was completed. Public meetings were held along the line to endeavor to get the public interested enough to subscribe for stock but with no success. An attempt was also made to pass a law levying a tax of 1% on property in Marion County for three years but this was defeated.

After all these efforts met with failure the directors of the road got permission to try to arrange for capital in the Eastern cities and the passage of a law by the legislature for that purpose renewed hopes in Indianapolis for the early completion of the road. A site was selected and the property obtained for locating the depot in Indianapolis in what was called Pogue's Run Valley.

Through the assistance of Mr. J.F.D. Lanier a loan of $100,000.00 was arranged for in New York under favorable terms to complete the road to Indianapolis and shortly thereafter the tides of fortune seemed to change and the railroad began to prosper.

The New York Globe in 1846 commented on the stock of the Madison-Indianapolis Railroad as being one of the most promising in the country with its business increasing 100% per annum with its receipts of that year showing a return of 20% on the capital stock.

The railroad was completed to Indianapolis early in October 1847, and a big celebration was held in that city on October 1st, people coming from Cincinnati, Lawrenceburg, Madison, Louisville, Jeffersonville, New Albany, LaFayette, Terre Haute, and other surrounding towns.

The completion of the railroad was a great stimulus to the business in Indianapolis and great improvement soon started in that city. The success of the Madison-Indianapolis road also revived many other railroad projects in Indiana that had been laying dormant since the '30s. Roads connecting the Madison road with Shelbyville, Rushville, and Knightstown were soon built and much of the equipment for these roads was built or put up at the shops in North Madison.

Right here in the article was mentioned the tremendous amount of hogs that were being shipped to Madison on the railroad. One day a train consisting of 28 double cars containing 1365 hogs came into Madison pulled by one locomotive. Another mention was made of the scarcity of cars in which to handle the hogs. One year during the killing season between November 14th and January 8th, 57,000 hogs were brought into Madison and the next year 75,000. Such business naturally stimulated the desire of other parts of the state to build railroads and by 1850 quite a few others had been built and were in the process of building.

By this time Cincinnati was beginning to take notice of what was happening as evidenced by the following letter taken from the Cincinnati Gazette and published in the Madison Courier of September 21, 1850 and was pushing for a railroad to tap Central Indiana.

"A crisis has arrived in the history of Cincinnati, precisely analogous to that which New York passed through thirty-three years ago, when the great Erie Canal was projected by the illustrious DEWITT Clinton. By the construction of this Canal, connecting that city with the lakes, and thus with the valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi; a point which, seventy years ago, was the commercial inferior of Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, has distanced its competitors in the race, and has laid the North American continent under tribute.

Every merchant in Cincinnati is aware that our great field of trade lies, and always must lie, in central and western Indiana. To it we owe everything, and with it we grow or decline in prosperity by the immutable laws of nature. Now, this trade is in danger of being cut off, and will inevitably be lessened and diverted by three active competitors, who are already pushing their railroads into the very heart of the stronghold of our superiority. These competitors are Louisville, Madison and New York. Let Cincinnatians distinctly understand that the two Western cities just named are our equals in natural position, and will soon be our superiors in artificial connection also, unless we take advantage of the present opportunity to strike the blow which will at once make us the New York of the West, and enable us forever to defy all attempts at rivalry.

Louisville is now constructing a railroad, already in part completed, from Lew Albany, via Gosport and Greencastle, to Crawfordsville, connecting there with one nearly finished to Lafayette. It will be seen by a glance at the map that she will then be the most convenient & accessible market to the merchants of central & western Indiana, and of eastern Illinois. Let Louisville once complete this road, without a direct communication with Indianapolis on our part, and in five years she will double her population, and claim again our title of "Queen City", as she has done before.

Madison, by her connection with Indianapolis merely, has sprung up within a few years from a fourth-rate river town into a large & flourishing city. What, then, may she not expect when the five railroads now constructed & in progress, from Indianapolis, are completed..... affording her access to every part of Indiana & eastern Illinois.

If any of our merchants should undervalue the amount of trade already intercepted by Madison, let them step upon a steamboat & pay her a single day's visit, and they will be astonished at the loss which we already sustain, and which would in itself amply repay the proposed enterprise, since the 'Railroad direct' would at once restore to us the large and profitable business which she at present possesses.

New York, always sagacious and alive to her own interests, has already perceived the magnitude of the prize which lies within our grasp, and is already aiming to secure it by a railroad direct from Bellefontaine to Indianapolis, which will be completed and in use this fall as far east from the latter point as Pendleton.

Now, then, what will our prospect be three years hence for the most important trade we possess?

New York will be within three days' travel, via Indianapolis, of Lafayette, of Peru, of Terre Haute; and via Terre Haute, within four days of St. Louis--direct.

Madison will be within twenty-four hours of the same points, and also of Bellefontaine and Rushville.

Louisville will be in connection within twenty-four hours, with the two White rivers and the Wabash Valley.

And where will Cincinnati be!

Where Louisville has been for ten years past--where Baltimore is now--NOWHERE!"

By this time Cincinnati was beginning to take notice of the trade that was flowing to Madison over the railroad and was pushing for a railroad to tap central Indiana. About the same time from 1846 to 1850 Louisville was helping Jeffersonville with a road to Indianapolis called the Ohio & Indianapolis and contributed toward the cost of building $200,000.00.

This road was built as far as Columbus and other roads were leased in the central part of the state. This road also bought a road from Edinburg to Shelbyville that was owned by two Madison men, Michael G. Bright and John Woodburn. The owners of the Madison road did not think that Bright & Woodburn would sell their road to the competing road but after they did the owners of the Madison road to meet this competition built a road from Columbus to Shelbyville and the city council of Madison raised $50,000.00 for stock in this road.

John Brough was President of the Madison road and about that time another road was started from Cincinnati west and the promoters of the road called the O. & M. now the B & O offered to come through Lawrenceburg & Madison if the Madison & Indianapolis road would support them, but Brough because of the success of the Madison road had become rather arrogant and told them that the Madison road could not father all the paupers of the country.

That seemed to be the turning point in the history of the Madison road. Its greatest years of prosperity were between the years of 1847 and 1852. A few years later it was in financial straits & was sold at foreclosure and in 1866 was consolidated with the Jeffersonville road to form the J.M. & I. which in later years became a part of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The downfall of the Madison road was blamed on the building of the competing Lawrenceburg & Jeffersonville roads and on Brough's folly in spending $400,000.00 in trying to build a new grade up the hill at Madison, evidence of which still can be seen in Clifty Falls Park. At one time it was stated that there were over 800 men working on that job.

A few other side lights during that period in Indiana History are also interesting. While the railroads were being developed in the Southern and Central part of the state the Northern part was depending on the Wabash & Erie Canal for shipping produce to New York and Boston. This canal was finished to Lafayette in 1842 and extended to Terre Haute in 1849 and reached Evansville by 1853.

The different editors of the papers took a great deal of delight whenever the opportunity arose to puff up their respective communities. Along about 1851 a controversy arose between the editors of the Madison and Indianapolis papers over the wealth and importance of the two cities.

Indianapolis claimed 19 persons with taxables over 20,000.00 and a total of $587,000.00 The Madison editors came back with a list of four individuals in Madison

M.G.Bright; John McIntire heirs; John Woodburn; and the William Hendricks heirs with a total of $596,000.00 and 28 others including such names as;

Alois Bachman, Jas. D. Bright, Jonathan Fitch, C.T.Lodge, J.F.D.Lanier, John R. Cravens, A.W.Pitcher, Nathan Powell, C.S.Shrewsbury, W.G.Wharton, Howard Watts.

Some of which are familiar to us today and others with a total of $1,500,000.00.

Some figures on population at that time were also given. One editor estimated the population of Madison in 1850 as about 12,000 but a more reliable figure was probably given in the following comparisons published at a later date.

In 1850 the population of Indiana was given as 988,416 and the most populous counties were Wayne with 25,320; Marion 24,103; Jefferson 23,916.

In the early days of the railroad the locomotives were fired with wood which was bought along the road and when the train stopped to take on wood the passengers would get out and help to load it on. Water was taken on in the same way. The speed of the trains was given as from 15 to 20 miles an hour and the people along the way complained about them being run too fast.

Most of the first iron rails used were flat and sometimes the ends would curl up in what was called snake heads and occasionally the train would have to stop until these snake heads could be fastened down again before it could proceed.

The Madison Hotel was built in 1850 and was described as being one of the finest and best equipped in the country at that time. Very many large and important gatherings were held in its parlors.

During one of the editorial tirades between the editors of the Madison and Indianapolis papers the Madison editor spoke of Indianapolis as being the village at the end of the road. Little did he realize that the so called village of those days was destined to become the metropolis of the state.
